Sailor Finds Real 'Hope' In Vietnam

By SCOTT KINGMAN
Staff Writer

Men traditionally have brought things back from wars. Twenty-year-old Dennis Yerington is bringing back an orphan. And he named her Hope.

In bringing to America the 4½-month-old Vietnamese foundling, Naval Reserve Seaman Yerington and his wife, Linda, believe theirs to be the first such adoption in Michigan. Yerington arrived at Ros Field Wednesday night at the end of his tour of duty in Vietnam which began in August, 1968. He was greeted by a crowd of more than 50 well-wishers including his neighbors and relatives from as far away as Iowa.

While in Vietnam, Yerington was assigned to the Naval Support Activity, I Corps, and was a crewman on an LCM mine sweeper.

He said he decided to adopt a Vietnamese child because he wanted to "give one of these children a chance to live in a free country where a good education is available and where there isn't the sound of gunfire."

Found in a garbage can by Vietnamese villagers, Nguyen Thi Thanh Van—soon to be Hope Annette Yerington—should be stateside within one and a half months, Yerington said.

People in a Vietnamese orphanage at Da Nang told him the infant, suffering from malnutrition, had a heart condition. This would have prohibited her adoption, he was informed.

Unmoved, Yerington got permission to take the infant to the USS Sanctuary, a hospital ship, where a doctor performed an electrocardiogram test and took X-rays. Test results: no heart problems.

Yerington, believing facilities to be better on the hospital ship, requested that Hope stay aboard.

The first doctor conferred with other physicians on the ship, Yerington said, and on June 24, Hope Annette became a passenger-patient. There she will remain until she and other Vietnamese orphans will be flown to this country.

By the time of Hope's transfer from the orphanage to the ship, Yerington had already met with his wife while on rest and recuperation in Hawaii, gotten her wholehearted approval, and had begun accumulating the first of many adoption forms.

Yerington said a Navy chaplain had tried to discourage the adoption. But when the young seaman said it looked as if he'd have to go elsewhere for help, the chaplain started the wheels rolling.

Wife of a year and nine months, Mrs. Yerington said of the early problems, "If you really want to adopt a child, you have to fight for one."

Saying he loves the child as his own, Yerington added he was "always brought up to love my fellow man whether he's white, black or green, whether he has round or slanted eyes."

What does the young sailor's father, Howard Yerington, think of the adoption?

"It's wonderful. I'm all for it. I back him up 100 per cent. If there's anything we can do to help, we will do it. My wife is just as happy as I am."

Questioned as to why he's adopting a Vietnamese foundling, Yerington would say only, "I love her."

Yerington said the work that remains is primarily a formality. According to Michigan law, the couple will have to re-adopt Hope Annette once she arrives in this country. She will, however, remain in their charge until that time. The law further states that a father must be 21 to qualify for adoption. Yerington attains that age in about four months.

Yerington said he's had no criticism of the adoption and that everyone was "just wonderful" in helping him.

The Yeringtons, both 20, are to be moving to Damneck Naval Base in Virginia Beach, Va., at the end of the father-to-be's leave in September. They have no other children.

A 1967 graduate of Benton Harbor high school, Yerington has been in the Naval Reserve since December, 1966. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Yerington live at 826 Dixie drive, Benton township.

Attractive Mrs. Yerington, the former Linda Story, is the

'Loved Cycles Even Better Than Girls'

CENTER LINE (AP)—Home-town friends described 22-year-old John Norman Collins, charged Friday with slaying an Eastern Michigan University coed, as an honor student and a tough athletic competitor.

Collins, who was studying elementary education at Eastern Michigan University, was charged with strangling Karen Sue Beineman.

"I never thought anything like this would happen," said Collins' high school athletic coach, Al Baumgart. "Evidently something was disturbing him. That's all I can think of."

DATED DAUGHTERS
Across the street from where Collins' mother lives, Mrs. Norman Burlison said the youth at times dated her 19-year-old daughter, Kathryn.

"We have known him since he was a little boy—you know—how you see the neighborhood kids."

She said the muscular student came to his mother's home Tuesday to wash his car. Neighbors said his mother, Mrs. Loretta Collins, was estranged from her husband.

"You wouldn't think he had anything on his mind," she said.

A woman who answered the telephone at the Collins' home said she had "no comment" on the arrest.

Collins, six-foot and weighing about 170 pounds, was the captain of the football team at Center Line St. Clement High School in 1964. He played end and safety.

He also was an honor student in the classroom, reported the Rev. Lawrence Doyle, a priest at the Roman Catholic school in the Detroit suburb.

Baumgart said Collins "was a real competitor and he liked strong discipline and he wanted to be disciplined. He was a winner and he didn't want to lose."

"He gave 100 per cent," Baumgart said. "He was a very intelligent boy," the coach added.

Baumgart credited many of the football victories to Collins' "playing spirit." He said Collins would pat his fellow players on the back in encouraging them to win.

When St. Clement lost the regional football championship in 1964, "he had tears in his eyes," the coach recalled.

Baumgart said Collins, who was well groomed, would "kind of pout" if he was irritated, "maybe for a day or two."

"I was kind of flabbergasted. It just doesn't seem to ring," he said.

The same sentiments were echoed by two of Collins' high school chums.

"I'm positive he will be exonerated," said high school classmate John Gervasi, who said he had last talked to Collins a few months ago.

One of the other co-captains on the team, Chris Diliberti, said, "He was nothing but a great guy. I just can't believe he's connected with any of this."

Diliberti added, "He was a good, strong football player, but he wasn't violent. He never got into fights."

The football coach said Collins found out that college athletic

Thousands Cheer Nixon In Romania

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP)—President Nixon was cheered by thousands of Romanians today on his arrival from Pakistan and told them the United States is ready to help establish a Europe "free from the fear of war or threats of war."

President Nicolae Ceausescu, greeting the first American president to visit a Communist capital, stressed peaceful coexistence as "a safe way of building a climate of confidence."

Thousands of persons waving U.S. flags were at Otopeni Airport and welcoming signs were out as the president and Mrs. Nixon stepped from their plane, Air Force One, into the hot sunshine.

The entire city was in a festive mood, and the turnout along the 12-mile route from the airport to downtown Bucharest was so great that Romanian officials ordered the motorcade to slow down so spectators could get a good look at the president and his wife.

The people had been standing patiently for as much as five hours. Girls and women in bright summer dresses and men in sports shirts and business suits stood behind lines of soldiers.

Workers, who ordinarily quit at 1 p.m. on Saturday, were let off several hours early to be able to join in the welcome.

The slowdown of the motorcade meant that the early part of the program would be set back. But a Romanian television announcer told his audience: "The people want to greet President Nixon, so we are forced to reduce the speed of the convoy."

FORCED TO STOP
Dense crowds forced the motorcade to stop once. The spectators applauded and shouted greetings.

Nixon appeared delighted. He stood up in the car, hands held high, a broad grin on his face. Beside him stood the youthful-looking Romanian President, who seemed to be enjoying the spectacle.

At times the convoy took on the appearance of a triumphal procession rather than a visit as massed humanity cheered its progress, and U.S. and Romanian flags fluttered in the light breeze.

At the Arch of Triumph, Ceausescu ordered the motorcade

Seek Links With Other Coed Slayings

YPSILANTI (AP)—Police today sought to link John N. Collins, a motorcycle enthusiast who planned to teach elementary school, with more than one of the brutal slayings of young women in southeast Michigan.

Collins, a muscular six-footer, was held today without bond after being charged Friday with strangling Karen Sue Beineman, 18, an Eastern Michigan University coed whose body was found a week ago.

Police said Collins, an Eastern Michigan senior in education, was being investigated in the six other unsolved slayings of young women in the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area in the last two years.

No connection, however, was reported.

CAN'T BELIEVE IT

University associates and friends in Collins' hometown of Center Line expressed disbelief. They generally portrayed Collins as a good student and an all-around athlete, who was polite to women. Others described him as "moody."

He was an honor student and a football co-captain at Center Line St. Clement High School in 1964. He grew up with his mother, who neighbors said is estranged from her husband.

The mother, Mrs. Loretta N. Collins, wept at the arraignment.

Also at the arraignment was Sandy Fleszar, 20, of Willis, whose sister, Mary, was fatally stabbed two years ago in the first of a series of eight slayings.

Police earlier this year charged an Ann Arbor laborer with one of the eight, a slaying believed unconnected with the others. No arrests were made on any of the others until Friday.

Miss Fleszar said she thought she knew Collins and she believed Collins noticed her standing there.

Police said Mary Fleszar had lived about a block from Collins' present apartment. Another victim, Joan Schell, 20, had resided nearby. Both were Eastern Michigan students.

In addition, police revealed Collins once worked at an Eastern Michigan office, next to where Miss Fleszar was employed.

The girls were shot, stabbed, beaten or strangled and in most cases were sexually molested.

State Police Director Col. Fredrick Davis said Miss Beineman was believed to have been slain at the home of State Police Cpl. David Leik, who is Collins' uncle through marriage.

SOMETHING UNUSUAL

He said Cpl. Leik, who had been away with his family on vacation, noticed something unusual in the home when he returned to Ypsilanti and informed authorities.

Blasphemous Bird Banned From Contest

STOKE-ON-TRENT, England (AP)—Bill, a parakeet, chirped himself out of a nationwide talking-bird contest Friday by swearing at a Methodist minister.

The Rev. Albert Ball, judging one of eight regional contests leading up to the National Talking-Bird Championships later this month, had eliminated all but two birds when Bill loosed a torrent of rude words.

"I'm sure he learned those words from the sparrows," said Bill's blushing woman owner.

Rev. Ball said he had no choice but to disqualify the blasphemous bird. The national winner will appear on the British Broadcasting Corp. radio network.

"We really could not have a parakeet swearing on the B.B.C.," Rev. Ball said.

Recruiting More Problems For The Area

A meeting of the Benton Harbor Human Relations Council on Wednesday revealed the astounding news that the U.S. Department of Labor and a number of church oriented groups are thinking positively on adding to the already swollen welfare difficulty in the community.

Substantially what they propose is encouraging migrant farm labor to settle permanently in the area.

They theorize that mechanization will, reasonably soon, reduce the need for farm labor to a minimum. Therefore, the time is at hand to train the itinerant laborer for industrial jobs and urge him to settle down permanently in those visitational areas to which farm work may attract him and with which he is most familiar.

The idea as an exercise in practical Christianity is hard to argue against.

The itinerant's original domicile, the southern and southwestern states, lacks the industrial job opportunities awaiting in the northern states, and if the latter's agricultural job potential is shrinking, where is the logical place to absorb him?

There is only one big, fat hole in the argument.

This area, Benton Harbor and Benton Township in particular, already is groaning under the burden of trying to help lift several thousand disadvantaged persons out of their difficulties.

The schools are jammed to the window sills.

Law enforcement is a localized version of Viet Nam.

Housing is in short supply and to a distressing degree, downright wretched.

The welfare cost gallops along faster than the inflation gnawing at the economy overall.

Bringing in more disadvantaged before we can step up the pace in helping those on the scene makes as much sense as inviting a dozen guests to sit down to a table prepared for four.

Only a bureaucrat or a fuzzy minded cleric would think of compounding a puzzle before its pieces have been sorted.

Little wonder, then, that several people in organizations working on the problem before the community promised active opposition to its proliferation.

Dr. Mark Lewis, the Benton Harbor school superintendent; Mrs. Mary DeFoe, a national representative for the NAACP; Mrs. Jacquelyn Zerlaut, office manager for the Ausco union; and George Welch, speaking for the Area Resources Improvement Council (ARIC) used different words in describing their positions, but they emerge in the same meaning:

Common sense.

To that we can only respond, Amen.

Hiroshima's Survivors

Wednesday is the 24th anniversary of the dropping of an atomic bomb on Hiroshima.

"Rest in peace, for the error shall not be repeated." Thus reads the inscription engraved inside the cenotaph at Hiroshima's Peace Park. On Wednesday, as every year, a crowd will gather in the park to pray for the estimated 200,000 victims of the world's first atomic attack.

It is customary on these occasions to place at the cenotaph a list of persons who died in the previous year from the effects of the 1945 bombing. Last year's list contained the names of 1,101 people, including a former mayor of the city.

The Hiroshima Hospital for Atomic Diseases continues to treat scores of patients each month for radiation-related diseases. The same is true in Nagasaki, on which an atomic bomb was dropped Aug. 9, 1945.

Leukemia is far and away the most serious health problem resulting from nuclear radiation. Among Japanese in general, the annual leukemia rate is two or three per 100,000 people. Among victims who were within 3,000 yards of the Hiroshima or Nagasaki blasts, the rate is around 15 per 100,000; among those who were less than 1,000 yards away, as high as 200 per 100,000.

The University of Hiroshima disclosed two years ago the existence of 45 young men and women who were in utero on Aug. 6, 1945. All are microcephalic and in various stages of mental retardation. For this and other reasons, the hibakusha literally, "explosion-affected persons", have difficulty finding marriage partners.

The survivors bear psychic as well as physical scars. Dr. Robert Jay Lifton, a Yale professor of psychiatry, has found the hibakusha suffer from a wide variety of psychosomatic ailments: they fatigue easily, never feel quite well and are alarmed by minor indispositions. On a deeper level, they have never recovered from or mastered their "death immersion" and its attendant horrors.

The first emotional effect of the Hiroshima bombing on its survivors was "psychic numbing", loss of the capacity to feel for others. In the intervening years, this feeling has been replaced by "death guilt." It entails not only the guilt of having lived while others died ("guilt over survival priority") but also of having mistreated the dead.

In general, Lifton believes, too little attention is paid to the importance of death's presence in shaping ordinary human behavior. He argues that "death anxiety, death guilt, and the threat to symbolic immortality are fundamental not only to the periods of depression we all undergo, but also to the entire general phenomenon of prejudice and victimization."

Hiroshima itself has made a virtually complete physical recovery from the holocaust. An inward-looking "castle town" of 400,000 before the war, the city has been rebuilt with a view to providing spaciousness. Peace Boulevard, for instance, is more than 100 yards wide.

But Hiroshima cannot forget, and it does not want humanity to forget. Memories of August, 1945 help to explain much of the Japanese revulsion against American policy in Viet Nam. "To many Japanese," journalist Rafael Steinberg has written, "the news of American planes bombing Asians in Viet Nam automatically switched on the vision of Hiroshima and the mushroom cloud."

U.S. LEAVING Peace Has Shaky Future In Saigon

By DON OAKLEY
NEA Editorialist

It is not premature, even in view of continued North Vietnamese obstinacy at the Paris peace talks, to think about the postwar future of South Vietnam.

Although it has not stated it in so many official words, the United States is clearly committed to ending its active military involvement in the war, sooner or later, one way or another. Part of this process has been the pressure brought in the past few months against President Nguyen Van Thieu to persuade him to offer accommodation to the Viet Cong and other political elements in a future, freely elected government.

Unfortunately, however, between the Thieu regime on the one extreme and the Communists on the other, there exists a serious vacuum in South Vietnamese politics—and Communists are well-known for their abhorrence of political vacuums. The dismantling of the American military shield may reveal how deep, and dangerous, that vacuum is.

For the Saigon government has effectively silenced or isolated almost all its rivals, including those who are anti-Communist as they are anti-Thieu.

The most scandalous example is Truong Dinh Dzu, who ran second to Thieu in the presidential election in 1967. He has been in prison for a year, having been sentenced to a five-year term for advocating the very kind of coalition the Thieu government now ostensibly champions.

Duong Van Minh, one of the generals who helped overthrow the dictatorship of President Ngo Dinh Diem in 1963, was exiled to prevent him from running in the 1967 election.

Au Thuong Thanh, former minister of economics in the government of now-Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky and a prominent anti-Communist, is in exile in France. His name was thrown off the 1967 ballot because of his peace advocacy.

More recently, Nguyen Lau, anti-Communist publisher of an English-language newspaper in Saigon, was sentenced to five years in prison for expressing his views on peace to a Viet Cong agent.

There is a long list of other former or potential South Vietnamese leaders who could play important roles in a non-Communist coalition government but who have attracted the suspicion or displeasure of Saigon and been imprisoned or exiled or otherwise relegated to political uselessness.

For the sake of long-range American strategic interests in Southeast Asia, if not for the sake of democracy and the tens of thousands of American soldiers who have given their lives in this war, it is essential that viable political alternatives be encouraged in South Vietnam.

Peace could come sooner than expected. And an unprepared for peace could be more menacing to South Vietnam than North Vietnam's attempt at a military take-over in 1964.

DR. COLEMAN ..And Speaking Of Your Health

It is astonishing for a doctor to follow the public through fear of a disease to total apathy and carelessness when a cure is found. This is typified by the tremendous anxiety of women when told of an Rh factor present during pregnancy.

Dangers to the newborn child when such a condition existed struck terror in the hearts of the parents during the nine months before delivery, destroying the normal happiness that should be present during this time. All kinds of rescue operations, including complete transfusions, were always standing by when the Rh baby made its entrance into the world.

A concentrated effort to discover a vaccine that would eliminate the possibility of the dreaded complication, erythroblastosis fetalis, was begun in many laboratories all over the country. Out of this came a remarkable vaccine which in a single dose can almost entirely wipe out the problem.

The vaccine is known to be successful, but the use of it is neglected in many instances. It is true that at the present time the cost for this Rh immunity is high. But that is not the only reason why there is a failure to use it.

Despite the most intensive campaign, many mothers fail to take advantage of this brilliant accomplishment to offer the unborn child his rightful heritage of a life uncomplicated by Rh problems. There is hope in modern medical accomplishments, but they must be used if we are to benefit by them.

At the Manhattan Eye, Ear & Throat Hospital in New York City a full wall is covered by glass-enclosed specimens that children and adults have swallowed or sucked into their lungs. This remarkable display of hardware includes open and closed safety pins, chicken and fish bones, coins, medals, rings, teeth, dentures, parts of eyeglasses, a five-pronged toy jack (normally they are six), buttons, watch cases, erasers, and even an entire ball-point pen.

And these are only a few of the diversified objects that are removed by the delicate and highly technical methods of bronchoscopy and esophagoscopy.

Many ingenious and remarkable tools have been developed from the time that Dr. Chevalier Jackson and his son made this specialty a prominent one by its lifesaving techniques.

The closed safety pin in the esophagus is difficult enough to

Dr. Coleman believe, but the frequency with which it is found to be open is astonishing. To remove the open safety pin, it first is pushed into the stomach and rotated so that the sharp point is "trailing" and, therefore, can not tear the thin esophagus as it is being removed.

A new magnetic device has been created by Dr. Arthur Q. Penta of Schenectady, N. Y., with the aid of the General Electric Company. The magnet can be passed into the esophagus and then into the stomach in order to turn the pin around so that the blunt end can come out first. The greatness of this contribution is that it can be used in small communities where there are no esophagocopy specialists. The magnet is attached to a steel cable which can be inserted into the stomach and maneuvered while the patient is kept under direct view by the fluoroscopic X-ray. A great contribution!

Opening lead — king of hearts.

Here is a fine hand where good play enabled declarer to bring home a slam.

West led the king of hearts and continued with the ace. Declarer ruffed, drew two rounds of trumps, cashed the king of diamonds and ruffed dummy's last heart. Then, after cashing the ace of diamonds, he ruffed the jack in dummy.

South now had to save the potential club loser or lose the contract. Had he cashed the A-K of clubs in the hope of catching either opponent with a singleton or doubleton queen, he would have gone down one.

But South realized there was a better chance of making the hand on a different method of play, and, backing his judgment, he led the jack of clubs, planning to finesse if East followed low. When East covered with the queen, South won with the king as West followed with the nine.

Declarer then returned to dummy with a trump, led a club and finessed the eight to make the slam.

South's highly unusual handling of the club suit was clearly correct because at the point when he led the jack of clubs he knew 12 of West's original 13 cards.

West had revealed an eight-card suit at trick two and had also followed twice in spades and diamonds, thus accounting in full for his holding in three suits. It consequently became certain that he held precisely one club.

This club could be either the queen, ten, nine, five or three. Since South knew he had no chance if it was the five or three, he had to assume it was the queen, ten or nine.

By leading the jack instead of a low club, declarer gave himself twice as much chance of making the contract, since West would normally be dealt the singleton ten or nine exactly twice as often as the singleton queen. In the actual case, the percentage play worked to perfection.

STATE TELLS LAKE BLUFF PROTECTION PLAN

MAP SHOWS STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT'S PROPOSED SEA WALL ON LAKE SHORE DRIVE

$1 Million Lake Wall To Be Built

Permit Sought
For Construction
In St. Joseph

Details of the million dollar sea wall to keep Lake Shore drive, St. Joseph, from sliding into Lake Michigan were revealed in drawings submitted to the Corps of Engineers by the state highway department.

The highway department has applied for a federal permit to construct shore protection facilities just south of the existing Chesapeake & Ohio Railway seawall. Any interested person with an objection can file written protests with the Department of the Army, Detroit district, Corps of Engineers, Detroit, before 4:30 p.m. Aug. 25, according to Col. James T. White, Jr.

The highway department said the drawings are subject to change since field surveys were not complete at the time the drawings were made.

The 3,900-foot wall will run south from a wall built by the Chesapeake & Ohio railway in the mid 1940's.

The existing steel jetties will be repaired. The existing slope will be covered with dirt and four inches of topsoil and seeded with rye and mulched. The slope will be one and a half foot horizontal for every foot vertical.

A sand clay fill, a wall of stone and the steel jetties will be installed to break wave action.

The highway department predicted when it first announced the project June 19 that the wall would take care of the erosion problem until the 21st century.

The wall of stone blocks each weighing from one and a half to two tons will be about 10 feet wide. The jetties will extend into the lake 50 feet.

Bits are scheduled to be taken late this year or early next year.

The erosion control structure has long been a major goal of the Lake Shore Chamber of Commerce, which notes the heavy traffic on that thoroughfare. Lake Shore drive is also Interstate-94 business loop.

Psychedelic Show Set For Sunday

Five popular local musical groups and a psychedelic light show will be featured this Sunday night when United Community Fund holds its Folk, Soul and Rock music festival.

The concert, open free to the general public, will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday in the terrace amphitheater of the new Lake Michigan college campus. The campus is located at Napier and York avenues, about one mile east of the I-94 overpass at Napier.

Originally, the concert was to have been on July 18 but was postponed due to inclement weather. With an assist from the weather on Sunday, the same program that was scheduled then will be offered.

Mrs. Carole Howard, chairman of the UCF youth division, said that musical groups appearing will be Deon and the Soul Brothers, The Chosen Few, The Little Bunch of People, Now and Then and Grover and Jeff. Most of the members of these groups are high school and college students from the Twin Cities area. Their efforts will be highlighted by a light show during the second half of the concert.

NO SOLICITATION
There will be no UCF solicitations at the concert, but two UCF officials will speak briefly to acquaint the youth of the area with the work of the United Fund and its 55 agencies.

The speakers will be Jerry McKinney, UCF campaign chairman, and Robert Wall, UCF public relations chairman. The evening's master of ceremonies will be Stephen Sizer.

Parking control will be under the supervision of the Alpha Phi Omega fraternity of LMC, and Benton Harbor high school cheerleaders will act as ushers. They also will pass out "mod" UCF bumper stickers. All persons connected with the concert are donating their time at no cost to UCF, Mrs. Howard said.

Marijuana Possession Is Charged

Chicago Youths
Held In St. Joe

Three Chicago youths visiting St. Joseph on a trip sponsored by the Neighborhood Youth Corps. were charged Friday with possession of marijuana.

The three were among seven taken into custody by St. Joseph police following a dispute in the Heritage shop, 304 State street. Part of the group was held inside the shop at sword point until police arrived.

Police said the group was identified as the same one which left the Ford-LaSalle drug store at State and Broad streets just before two watches were discovered missing. The thefts were reported minutes before police were called to the Heritage shop.

According to officers, the charges of marijuana were filed after one of the group was seen placing something in his shoe while being questioned inside the police station.

Police said the something turned out to be what appeared to be a marijuana cigarette.

THREE CHARGED
Charged were Albert and Alfred Brisco, both 19, twin brothers, and Fred and Charles Pierce, 17, also of Chicago. The three demanded preliminary hearings on the charges upon being arraigned before Sixth District court Judge Harry Laiti. Bond was set at $2,500 in each case, but not posted. The other four picked up with the trio were released after questioning.

Officer Clifford Ward said one of the group was being held by employees of the Heritage with a bag containing three sweaters when police arrived.

The employees said the youth appeared to be leaving the store without stopping at the checkout counter first.

Clerk Warren Deuel said he picked up a sword and told the youth and the others to stop until police arrived. The sword was described as an ornamental

Fourth Home Burglarized In 2 Days

About $500 in cash and $25 worth of food were reported stolen from a Benton Harbor home while the owners were out Friday night at a movie.

The break-in was the fourth reported at a private home within the city in the last two days.

The loss of the money and food was reported by Guy P. Terbaugh, 861 McGuigan street at about 2:30 a.m. He told police he and his wife had left the house about 9:30 p.m. and found the money and goods missing upon returning from the show.

The cash consisted of two $100 bills, ten $20 bills and about $100 in change kept in jars. Police said the house had been ransacked.

An attempted break-in at another home was also reported to Benton Harbor police early today. Geneva Anderson of 655 Superior street, said she heard the side door rattling about 4:30 a.m. and found someone had tried to open it. She also said a rear door showed signs of being tampered with.

CRATER ON EMPIRE: The bottom suddenly dropped out of Empire avenue, Benton Harbor, yesterday. Section about eight feet square collapsed, forcing street to be closed to traffic from Colfax to Salem avenue. City officials said depth of hole was about 20 feet with water standing six to eight feet below surface. Heavy rains and ruptured storm sewer lines were blamed for cave-in. Repairs are expected to start Monday. (Staff photo)

SEVEN QUESTIONED

Ward said Albert Brisco and two others in the store when he arrived were being taken to the squad car when the other four showed up. He said all were taken in for questioning.

Thirty-one cigarettes, believed to contain marijuana, and a pack containing what police described as possibly heroin were confiscated. One watch, identified as similar to one missing from the drugstore also was located, the officers said.

Sherman Ford of the drugstore had said seven youths entered his store together and bought one watch before leaving. Two other watches were found missing from a display case just afterward, he said.

The arrested youths were among a group visiting Silver Beach.

SOUL BROTHERS PLAY FOR UCF: The popular Deon and the Soul Brothers, a group of Benton Harbor high school students, will be one of five featured musical combos to play Sunday night at the United Community Fund Folk, Soul and Rock festival. Healthy School System Means Healthy Community

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of statements by community leaders on the Benton Harbor school system and the millage election Aug. 11. These comments are by Dr. Harzel Taylor, secretary of the board of education.

Why is it essential to have a healthy school system in order to have a healthy community. Health is a sound mind in a sound body; if the former be the glory of the latter, the latter is indispensable to the former. In other words the sound mind is the school and the sound body is the community and they are indispensable to each other. With the sound mind and sound body, we are building a perfect body.

In every rank, both great and small it is industry and business that supports us all. Industry and business support our schools with more than 50 percent of our local shares of taxes. Therefore, it is essential that we attract industry and business in our community. With all things being equal such as availability of water, sewage and transportation, industry and business looks for a good progressive innovative school system for their children to attend. If industry and business are willing to carry their share, the citizenry should be willing to shoulder its share for both to benefit by employment and upright citizenry. A community good or bad can be determined by its school system. Therefore it is important, imperative, essential and necessary that we, senior citizens, middle citizens and young citizens, support and develop our community and schools in such a manner which reflect our destiny.

(Thoughts leads on to purposes, purposes go forth in action; actions from habits; habits decide character; and character fixes our destiny.)

We have a good school system in Benton Harbor. We want the best for our children. We have problems but we need courage and understanding. We have a system that opens the gates which lead to virtue or to vice, to happiness or to misery and no one can leave a better legacy to the world than a well-educated family or community.

With our support both financially and physically we can dispel the vice and misery and promote virtue and happiness but we must work together. The children of future generations will be the losers or the leaders of tomorrow. Our senior citizens must realize that the battle is rough for them but they must also realize that the senior citizens of yesterday led virtually the same rough battle.

We can be penny wise and pound foolish. We can develop juvenile delinquents at 10 times the cost of good education and good citizens for tomorrow. We can cause our streets to be safe or cause disturbance in the streets by lack of support or appreciation for beneficial education.

Some of you can panic and flee but there are others that cannot. Together we can bridge our differences and develop a community in which our grandchildren can be proud. Courage to face the problems both socially and economically will be rewarding if we can pool our knowledge and resources.

Apathy has no place in our community or school. We must act individually and collectively to maintain and improve the conditions of the surroundings.

Attitudes, participation and involvement in every segment of our government and school is by far the most important contribution that we can play. We must strive for the best in schools, (curriculum, extra curriculum and facilities) and in city government. The best teachers, administrators and non-professional personnel must be our goals. Educational opportunity must be available to every child and adult within a community. But this is only possible if we are united without apathy or selfish motives.

We, the Benton Harbor school system, admit that we have problems but we ask your support Aug. 11, 1969, in an affirmative way to prevent retrogression or a backward step in education. Therefore we are hopeful to do our part in this total complex problems facing our community and we need your support individually and collectively.

Harzel Taylor, D.D.S.

Escapee Is Returned To Jail

An escapee from the Berrien county jail was back in custody today, facing two new felony charges.

Sheriff's Deputy Tom McCall said Clifford Butler, 21, route 3, Box 637, North Shore drive, Coloma was recaptured Thursday at his home and returned to jail. He escaped Tuesday, McCall said.

According to the deputy, Butler had about 30 days to go on a 90-day sentence when he disappeared. He had been appointed a trusty which gave him freedom to move about the jail without a guard.

Charles of escaping and auto theft were filed against him upon his return.

McCall said Butler was picked up after a tip was received regarding his whereabouts. He surrendered without incident.

The deputy said a car was reported stolen from Main street in Benton Harbor about the time of Butler's disappearance. It was later recovered in Edwardsburg, undamaged.

Car, Truck Collided On Riverview

A rural Benton Harbor man was reported in fair condition today in Mercy hospital as the result of a car-truck accident Friday afternoon on Riverview drive at Main street in Benton Harbor.

Benton Harbor police said Lawrence Mitchell, 38, of route 1 Box 149C, Benton Harbor, was admitted after his car hit the rear of a truck, shearing the car's roof back. He received severe nose cuts and possible head injuries.

A passenger in the car, Nancy Kelly, 19, of 430 1/2 Pavone street, and Harold P. Landis, route 1, Bald Knob, Ark., driver of the truck, escaped injury.

Mitchell was issued a ticket for failure to stop in an assured clear distance.

THE RISE AND FALL OF BERRIEN'S SHANGHAI

Railroad
Never Came
To VillageEarly Times
Were Exciting
For PioneersBy SAN DEE WALLACE
Staff Writer

Women arming themselves against Indians . . . Families chasing wolves and bears from their doors . . . Stagecoach runs . . . these and other tales are a part of the history of a once thriving Berrien county community.

Descendants of the pioneers who envisioned and platted a 160-acre city to be hewn out of vast forests, will meet and tell again the stories of the forefathers who settled in Pipestone village, later known as Shanghai.

The Shanghai reunion will be held at the Shanghai school on the corner of Park and Shanghai roads on Sunday, Aug. 10, at 12:30 p.m.

As a part of the reunion, Mrs. Albert Reschke, president of the group, is researching early day facts about the area before they are lost for future generations. One former resident, Harvey Franz, has helped Mrs. Reschke by loaning her articles and pictures about early-day Shanghai.

The rise and fall of Shanghai depended largely on two events, an expected railroad which never came, and the building of a dam and mills which were later destroyed by flood waters.

INCLUDED SODUS
Pipestone township, which once included what is now Sodus township, was surveyed in 1829, platted in 1836 and first settled by James Kirk in 1837. Other early settlers were Dr. Morgan Enos, who built the first mill on Pipestone Creek in 1852; and William Boughton, who became the first postmaster in 1850.

Mrs. Reschke said her interest in the area was heightened when she learned she and her family now reside on a farm originally owned by Dr. Enos.

Dr. Enos first built a sawmill on the banks of Pipestone creek in 1852. After it fell into disuse, he built a grist mill in the same location in 1869.

It was the building of the grist mill, 100 years ago, which gave Pipestone village the nickname, Shanghai. The story goes when the local men had gathered for a "raising bee," a

Shanghai rooster sitting on a large beam being raised into place for the mill, maintained his position, but crowed loudly his objection to being moved.

The first settlers following James Kirk, recalled the pioneer days when the men went off to fight the Blackhawk war and the women afraid the local Indians would go on a rampage, took up arms to protect themselves. The preparations were of a hysterical nature and no attack occurred because neighboring Indians were peaceful.

The heavily wooded area produced many wild animals and pioneers told of having to chase both bears and wolves from their homes while at the same time having to protect their livestock from the wild animals.

HIT PEAK IN '80'S
Shanghai was a regular stopping place for travelers and had one of the first post offices in the area. Mail was first transported by foot and horseback, and later by stagecoach.

The thriving village reached its peak from 1881 to 1887. The mills had to be kept going 24 hours a day to turn out the full capacity of 50 barrels of flour per day. The area boasted its recreational facilities and summer boarding houses on the mill pond created by the dam. In addition to several churches, the community included a wood-working shop, iron works, cooper's shop, post office and stagecoach stop, millinery and the first dairy in the area, the Pipestone Creamery.

Those who platted the village expected the Detroit-St. Joseph railroad to come through the village. When the Big Four, then the Chicago, Milwaukee, and St. Paul was built it was also expected to come through the village. However, as the story is told, land owners asked excessively high prices for their land, and although it meant making heavier grades, when a farmer named Hartman offered his land free to the railroad, the railroad bypassed Shanghai, shattering its dream of greatness.

Easier transportation and better roads along with gasoline engines for mills, continued to sound the death knell for Shanghai.

The settling of the area, cutting of timber and draining of swamplands had almost destroyed the drainage district, when in the late spring of 1918, heavy rains and too rapid run off of water created a flood which came crashing through the dam and wrecking the interior of the grist mill so badly, it could never be repaired.

After the flood waters wrecked the last remaining mill at Shanghai, the mill was sold in 1921 and torn down. The dam was not repaired and today only remnants of the dam can still be found on the now quiet creek to testify to the once busy community.

Nurses Will Graduate On Sunday
DOWAGIAC — The third annual Southwestern Michigan college nurses' graduation will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. on the steps of the campus library.

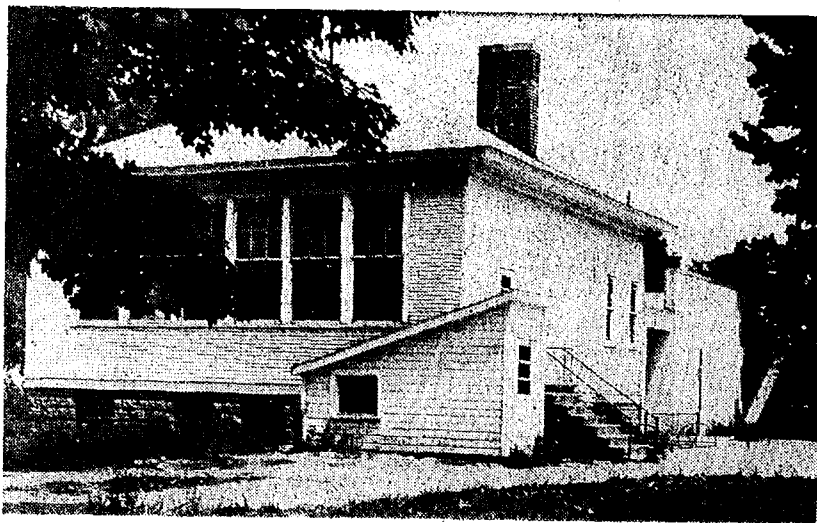

Dr. Leroy G. Augenstein, nationally known educator and author, who is a member of the Michigan state board of education, will be the keynote speaker. He is chairman of the biophysics department at Michigan State University.

The 29 young women who will receive certificates for the completion of 11 months of training leading to state licensing as practical nurses are: Elizabeth Green, Sally Laymon, Lynne McCalley, Lillian Morrow, Mary Wasylenko, Betty Wegemer and Joyce Weld, all of Dowagiac; Marjorie Brady, Perrine Crisler, Karen Lewis, Deborah McCauslin and Alixandra Patient, all of Cassopolis; Pamela Barthel, Simone Bird, Martha Brown, Valentine DiCerto, Susan Saigh and Marilyn Tobey all of Niles; Julie Bates of Watervliet; Mary Lou Bauschke, Brenda Brigham, both of Decatur; Marion Breece and Deann Reed of Vandalia; Sue-Lyn Cravens of Gobles; Carolyn Firstahl, Mary O'Donnell and Carolyn Sechman all of Paw Paw; Barbara Hazle of Hartford; and Julia Ann Reno of Elkhart.

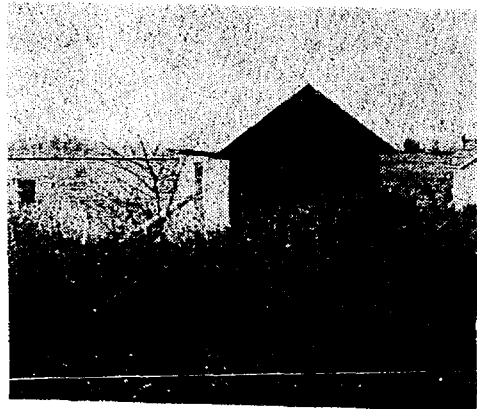

Following the commencement ceremonies, an outdoor reception is planned under the vocational building canopy.

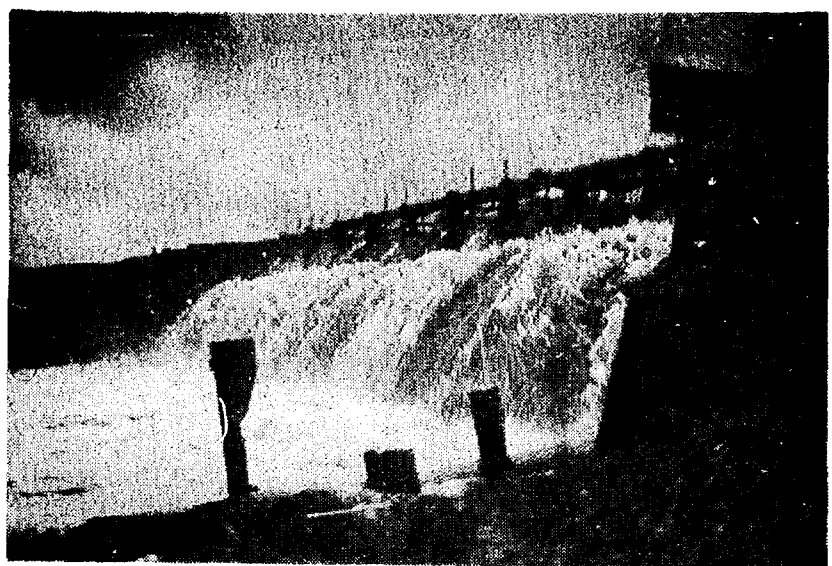

FAMILIAR CORNER STORE: The store on the southwest corner of Shanghai and Park roads was once a familiar shopping place for residents of the once thriving village of Shanghai during the years between 1915 and 1925. The corner is now occupied by a private home.

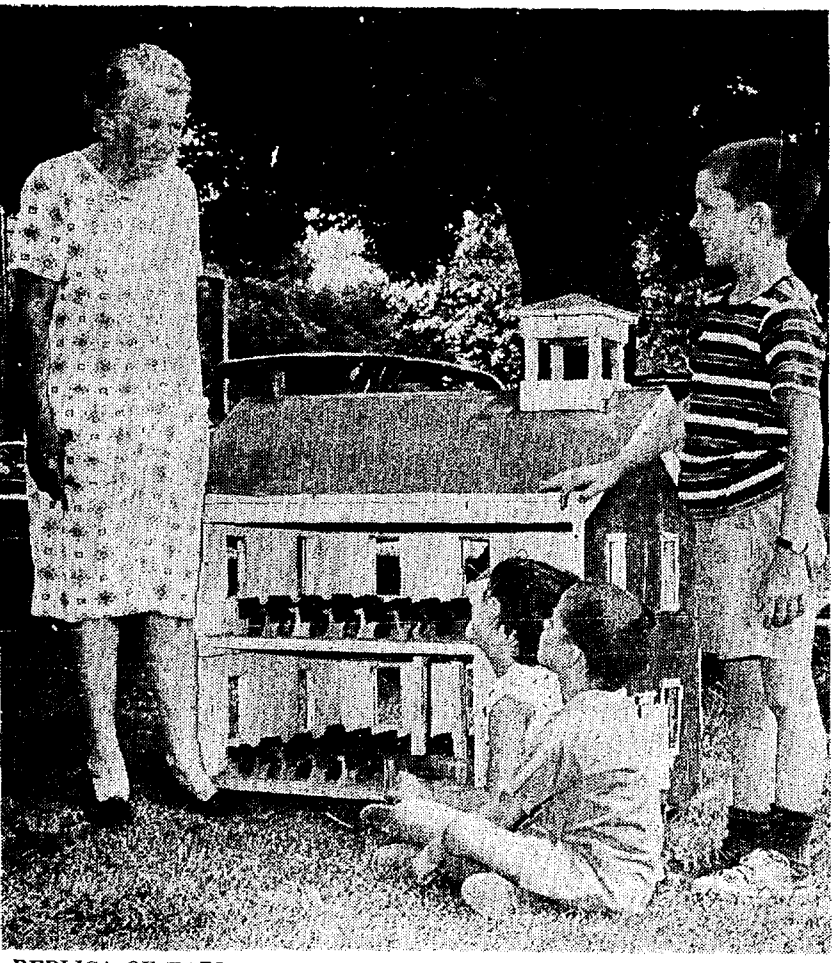

LAST VESTIGE OF SHANGHAI: The Shanghai school on the corner of Park and Shanghai roads is the last reminder of the once thriving Shanghai village. Although the school is a part of the Eau Claire school system, it retains the name of the village which reached its peak of prosperity in the 1880s. The portion of the building in foreground was constructed in 1926 to replace earlier structure built in 1881, which burned to the ground. The village had its first school in the 1840's. (Staff photo)

HARTMAN STATION: When the railroad station was established at Hartman instead of Shanghai, the thriving village began its decline. Shanghai was platted in hopes of a railroad passing through the community, but excessive prices for land made railroad builders turn to a man named Hartman who offered railroad free land a few miles south of Shanghai.

SHANGHAI DAM: Dam on Pipestone creek at Shanghai helped provide power for mills on creek and created mill pond used for recreational purposes before flood washed out dam and destroyed mill in late spring of 1918. Spillway and rushing water were common sight for at least 66 years before the flood. The dam was never rebuilt and the creek is now a quiet stream.

REPLICA OF EARLY SCHOOL: Mrs. Edna King of Park road near Shanghai explains replica of "little red schoolhouse," to Joy, Michael and Ken Reschke, children of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Reschke, Shanghai road. Replica was made by Mrs. King's uncle, William Parks about 1940. Parks attended the school before it burned to ground prior to 1926, when one portion of present school was built. First school in Shanghai was established in 1848, followed by the "little red school house." Replica has often been loaned for display and Mrs. King indicated she would like at some time to donate it to an area historical group. (Staff photo)

Paw Paw
Picks 4.3
Acre SiteSenior Citizen
Housing Unit
Will Be Built

PAW PAW—The Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Village of Paw Paw housing commission has approved a 4.3 acre site for a 30-unit senior citizen housing project.

The housing commission and Michigan representative for HUD, Frank Caliendo, toured several proposed sites for the project Monday and final approval for the site was given Thursday.

The housing project will use only a portion of the site which is located on the west side of the village, just off West Michigan avenue. The site is bordered on the east by the Paw Paw river and on the west by the Paw Paw junior-senior high school campus.

Housing commission president, Arnold Harvey, said yesterday that the commission was unanimous in its decision on the site. Before Monday's tour, the commission had been considering several sites in the village and had options to purchase at least four if they were approved.

Harvey said the commission based much of its decision to use the West Michigan avenue property, on its close access to the schools, Lake View Community hospital and the downtown area.

LOCATION OF SITE

The property is also located close to Maple Lake and is on the Paw Paw River mill pond.

Harvey added that in choosing the site, the housing commission wanted the senior citizens to feel that they are a part of the community by placing the apartments close to community activities.

"Too many people think the housing project will tuck the senior citizens away so they can't be seen. We don't want this. We want them to participate in the community," Harvey said.

The land selected for the project will now be purchased by project developers Mancini and Quint of Detroit. The development company will build the 30 units and then re-sell them to the federal government under a turn key arrangement.

Under a federally sponsored turn key projects, the federal government agrees to purchase and administer small housing projects built by private contractors.

FALL CONSTRUCTION

Harvey said yesterday that it is possible that work on the project may begin this fall. Plans call for the completion of the project in about 15 months after the starting date.

He added that the final design for the building is not yet complete, but at the present time, the housing commission is considering a single building unit of 30 apartments, which will be two stories high.

Two stories is the highest level which the building could possibly be built in the village because the Paw Paw fire department is not adequately equipped to battle fires which might occur more than 30 feet from the ground.

The estimated cost of the project will run about $15,000 per unit. With 30 units in the building, the total cost of the building should be about a half million dollars.

The 30-unit project was approved by the Department of Housing and Urban Development in April and the commission has been looking for a building site since then.

Oh, Oh! Pesty Alewives
May End Up On Beaches

LANSING (AP) — A "fairly heavy" dieoff of alewives in southern Lake Michigan was reported Friday by Jack Hammond, regional fish biologist for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

"The dieoff is much lighter than we experienced in 1967, but heavier than anything we observed last year," Hammond reported after an airplane flight over the area.

Hammond said if this is an isolated dieoff, the problem will disappear as fast as it appeared.

"If they continue to die, we could have a problem," he said. "We will know how serious it is by next week."

Two years ago, the herring-like, small fish piled up in windrows on Lake Michigan beaches and drove away many tourists and summer vacationers because of their mess and stench.

Hammond reported that mechanical beach cleaners are on the standby if many fish pile up on the beaches. The machines will be used to clean state park areas and beaches and also will be loaned out to local units of government.

ALMOST NO WIND
As of Friday, Hammond said, there was almost no wind. A westerly wind over the weekend could wash up dead fish observed floating in the water onto Michigan beaches.

PR Course

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Andrews University's Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary is offering a summer course in public relations to train ministers in the proper use of news media.

Twenty-five seminary students are enrolled in the course being taught by E. W. Tarr, director of public relations at the World Headquarters of the Seventh-day Adventist church in Washington, D. C.

Decatur
Teen Is Arraigned

PAW PAW — Steven J. Strick, 19, Decatur, demanded a preliminary examination when he was arraigned in Seventh district court yesterday on a charge of possession of marijuana.

Strick was arrested early yesterday by Van Buren county sheriff's deputies at his home. The sheriff's department had been investigating Strick since mid-July when a substance was found in his car.

Strick's hearing was set for Aug. 6, by Judge Luther I. Daines and he was returned to jail. He failed to post $500 bond.

In another case, Claud Gorman, 38, Wauchula, Fla., waived a preliminary examination on a charge of uttering and publishing a forged instrument and forgery, and was bound over to circuit court.

No date was set for his appearance in circuit court. He was released on $300 cash bond.

WATER QUALITY

LANSING (AP) — The State Water Resources Commission will hold a public hearing Aug. 20 at Escanaba on water quality standards.

Niles Home
Burglarized

NILES — A Niles township couple, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn McCombs, told state police here Friday that their home at 2755 Weaver road had been burglarized while they were on vacation.

Reported missing were three pistols, a shotgun and a rifle, assorted clothing and jewelry and small appliances, including a coffee maker.

Blossomtime Will Be Earlier In 1970

The Blossomtime Festival will be held one week earlier next year, according to an announcement by Blossomtime President Robert Braamse.

Braamse said three years ago the date was changed and the festival held a week later as an experiment. It has not proved successful and therefore the Blossomtime board of directors has set the festival one week earlier, as was the custom over the years.

The festival will begin with the traditional blessing of the blossoms on Sunday, May Third with the Grand Floral Parade being held the following Saturday, May 9.

The later date for the Blossom festival conflicts with the Holland Tulip Festival. The earlier date conflicts with shopping on the day before Mother's Day.

Wishful Thinking Can Make Bad Investing

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. — I invested $1,300 in 100 shares of American Motors at the start of this year with the expectation that it would hit 16 in February, when I could sell. Now I am willing to sell any time it reaches 14 so that I could recover my cost plus commissions. I'm getting nervous because I will need this money to live on in a few years.

A. — I have no "inside track" to American Motors and even if I did I would not use this column to predict which way a stock will move. In other words, I cannot be of much help to you but, rather, will use your letter as an object lesson to others who, like yourself, think the stock market operates for their convenience.

When you bought American Motors you paid a price of about 75 times 1968 earnings. So you were taking considerable risk.

Your expectation that it would hit 16 in a month, so that you could sell at a profit is, of course, nothing but pure wishful thinking, more appropriate to a child than to an adult woman. Having missed out on that $250 net profit, you are now willing to settle for getting out with a whole skin. But that "damn devil" stock market is showing you a loss.

Your error—and you have plenty of company in this—was in thinking that the stock market is a kindly, accommodating institution which would lift a stock to 16 merely because you happened to have paid 13 for it. I assure you your reasoning had no more factual basis than the plans of little girls "playing house."

If you are at an age only a few years from the time you will have to depend upon this money, what are you doing in a speculative stock that hasn't paid dividends since 1965?

NEW FUND

Q. — I have about $10,000 invested in an old-time mutual fund. I've been approached to invest in a new mutual fund just starting out. What do you know about it? Would it be a fair-to-good investment?

A. — All I know about the fund is its management, which has a good record. As to how this fund will perform, there is absolutely no clue.

TAX-EXEMPT BONDS

Q. — Would you please send me a list of tax-exempt bonds to be purchased by someone in the 20 per cent income tax bracket?

A. — I have no list of tax-exempts because residents of different states would best to consult local municipal bond dealers in order to assure themselves of state tax exemption, too.

Generally, a 20 per cent income tax bracket does not indicate investment in municipals. In today's market you can get 7 1/2-8 per cent from good quality utilities. After you take 20 per cent off that, I think you're still better off, net, than if you had bought municipals. Up around the 30-35 per cent tax bracket, the municipals' advantage is much clearer.

Shulsky welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

U.N. Guides Not Thrilled By Uniforms

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United Nations displayed a new uniform for its 100 girl guides which it said took months of preparation. Some of the girls seemed to question if it was worth the bother.

The uniform features a royal blue miniskirt, white blouse with full-length sleeves and a deep, wide collar, and a long, sleeveless Pilgrim-style tunic in gold with brass buttons. The fabrics are dacron and wool.

Some of the guides called it "deglamorizing" and said they would have to shape the tunics to their figures to offset that. "Some of us have had to shorten the skirt," said Soheila Garrett, an attractive Iranian guide.

Give your country a hand.
 But don't lift a finger.

Except to fill out this Payroll Savings Card where you work.

After that, just sit back and be lazy. Each payday part of your pay will be automatically set aside for U.S. Savings Bonds. And that can mean big money for you in the years to come. For a new home, for education, or for retirement. It means big money for your country, too. The kind it takes to put men on the moon, build highways, and keep the nation strong. And the government believes in safeguarding your investment in it. Bonds are guaranteed. And the U.S.

Treasury will replace them—free—if they are lost, stolen, or destroyed. There's a bonus, too. Each Bond you buy entitles you to buy a Freedom Share of the same denomination. Freedom Shares pay a higher rate of interest than Bonds, and mature in just four and one-half years. Now doesn't that sound like easy handi-work?

If they're lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace 'em.
